PROFILE

I have experience working in public health and community-based settings. I am a certified Health Educator with expertise in developing, implementing, and evaluating educational programs promoting individual and community health. My work has focused on reducing chronic disease risk factors through lifestyle change interventions targeting diet and physical activity. I am skilled at collaborating with multidisciplinary teams to address complex problems affecting the health of individuals and communities. In my previous role as Program Manager for a large non-profit organization, I successfully developed, implemented, and evaluated multiple multi-year grants totaling over $1 million dollars from state government agencies aimed at improving population level cardiovascular outcomes by addressing policy, system, and environmental-level barriers to healthy eating behaviors among low income adults residing in rural areas across 3 states.
